THE TREAT OF ENGLAND.

It is said by the reporters of the Associated Press that Salisbury has declared for England that he will not concede Behring sea as a mare clausum, and that she will make a naval demonstration in that direction presently. Let us hope that the story is error. However rooted we may be in the conviction that we maintain but our rights in Behring sea, we should indulge the hope that understand-ship will in this case exert its highest office, which is to prevent, not encourage war.At its best war is a fearful thing, and between people of a common tongue and such intervenient interests as those of America and Great Britain, there is more to deplore about it than in any other case, except that of domestic war. England will, we believe, if held firmly to the point, concede that the sealing interests should not be utterly destroyed, as they will be if the Behring sea is thrown open to the world. England has nothing to gain in the long run by such a course as will break down the protection the fisheries now have from the United States.
It is probable that to avoid war the United States would make some concessions in the matter of licensing limited fishing, but that our Government would yield up its right of property in that it purchased, and that for 125 years has been recognized as a right, exclusive in either the Government of Russia or of the United States, is unthinkable.If statesmanship through diplomacy cannot bring about a peaceful settlement of the Behring sea issue, then the people of the United States will consent to the arbitration of arms. If it comes to that it will be a costly and bloody war. Both nations are prepared to inflict upon each other incalculable injury. For a time we may, by reason of mutual enthusiasm take delight in such a conflict, but that we will not suffer greatly because of it, cannot be denied. Yet if we are driven to arms to maintain our policy, we have reason to anticipate on the part of the American sailor a brilliant defense of the Nation's flag. It must be humiliated under no circumstances; if all appeals to peaceful means fail the colors of the United States must not be lowered in submission to the dictation of the English Cabinet.We believe, however, that sober counsels will prevail, and that Lord Salisbury will not resort to the naval threat he promises —in fact, it is reasonable to receive his manifesto as insincere. But if he is correctly reported, and there is manifest by his act the sincerity of his expression, he will find that the American people are not to be easily or unconsciously snubbed; if driven to battle they certainly will be found upon the defensive in a surprisingly vigorous way. The assault must come from the other side, and when it does, and the sword is substituted for the pen, there will be such a contest as will disabuse the European mind of the idea that the American people are not prepared to fight upon the high seas, or to meet a powerful force anywhere.

THE STORY FROM NICE.

The report comes from Nice that the sanitariums at and near that famous resort are threatened from a new cause. It appears that pulmonary complaints have become so general there, and affect so large a portion of the native population, that great alarm exists among the people. The sanitariums have been so much resorted to by consumptives, that the disease has attacked the people of the place, and they bid fair to become a population of consumption breeders.This is not at all surprising in the light of the most recent demonstrations of science. It has been shown conclusively that consumption is communicable, not so much through contact with the afflicted, as through the atmosphere in which their sputum is ejected. The expectorations of the consumptive, when dried, enter the air as an insubstantial powder, which in turn is breathed by the people, and thus the disease is communicated from one to another.
This has led to the rapid spread of consumption in every sanitarium visited much by those afflicted with the destroyer. So well known is this fact, that physicians in this State have not hesitated to declare that the influx into the southern part of California of those with diseased lungs will prove a curse instead of a blessing to that section. It is positively known that there is infinite danger to the healthy from the expectoration of all afflicted with any ailment in which diseased particles are cast off. For this very reason the president everywhere should exercise the greatest caution to prevent the deposition of such waste matter in places where it is liable to dry and be resolved into floating particles.In all hotels, halls, and places of public resort, cuspidors should contain a solutionthat is deadly to these germs; and the same may be said of all such receptacles used in private houses. It is the simplest thing in the world to keep a small quantity of solution in all vessels used for such purposes. It is not only an offense to decency to expectorate upon floors and walls, but it ought to be a crime, as it is in some parts. An intelligent resident of India recently wrote of the Americans as he observed them during six months' residence in San Francisco and some other cities.
He declared in his book that our towns are huge spittoons, and most offensive and dangerous ones. Some of the San Francisco press took him severely to task for the expression, but there was a measure of important truth in his charge that demands our careful consideration. A German Board of Physicians that recently advised that consumptives in certain last stages of the disease should be isolated and kept from the presence of the well, was certainly theoretically wise in its judgment.It is officially reported from Paris that the Bonaparte woman, the confederate of murder Eyraud, has been proved to be a remarkably sensitive hypnotic subject. The operators have demonstrated that when she is hypnotized, and which condition is induced in her with greatest ease, she obeys every thought of the operator, though he may be in a distant room and separated from her by streets and walls. This tends to bear out the story of the woman, that in the assistance she gave Eyraud, she was not a free will agent.
It also partly answers the question recently propounded by a body of French Judges, "Is the influence capable of being so exerted as to render it wise for the law to consider it as a factor in determining what is competent testimony?" Of course a single case is not enough upon which to found a new principle in the law of evidence. But Dr. William A. Hammond, in our own country, recently by direction through thought, made a subject he had hypnotized seek out a person thought of, and endeavor to stab him, the subject having been provided with a paper dagger, and the assaulted party being warned of the intended seizure. Yet in that case the subject sprang upon the "victim" with such fury, and clung to him so desperately that others had to interfere to disengage the intended seizure. On being restored to a normal condition the subject had no memory whatever of the occurrence, and plainly showed that the hypnotic influence was concerning the thought of the doctor, and not the thought of the subject, or the toward a person with whom the subject had not even a passing acquaintance, and no reason whatever for ill-will. Eyraud will be convicted and dispatched inside of the next thirty days; of that we may be assured, since the French system is as swift as it is certain. But that the Bonaparte woman will be punished severely is not to be thought of; her story of vildomination over her by Eyraud will, after the recent experiments, serve to save her head.TAKEN IN CONNECTION with the financial debts by Russia upon Turkey, and the close friendly relations existing between Russia and France, the story that the Emperor has ordered the sudden mobilization of her navy, and is straining every muscle to put herself in readiness for a possible European conflict, has reason to fortify it.
That France has grounds for discontent with regard to the English-German agreement concerning the protectorates to be extended over certain portions of Africa, is unquestioned. At the same time, France is right when she predicts that Russia and Germany will not come to blows. All the rules of international etiquette demand, however, that England should have notified France of her proposed agreement with Germany; but the charge is made by a French Cabinet officer that this was not done, and that if England does not yet send the notice, the failure to do so must be taken as an act of offense. Russia will unquestionably do its utmost to cultivate the alliance of France over the English-German alliance, and make the discontent second the demand upon the Porte for greater religious liberty in the Turkish States, and the payment of the war indebtedness so long due. In all, the outlook in Europe is ominous, and unless the stories now told are wholly untrue, the chances of peace are greater than of continued peace. A factor in the matter is the difficulty between France and England concerning the lobster fisheries of Newfoundland. In that matter France occupies the position of error, as an elaborate statement of the case in the RECORD-UNION of Friday last made clear. But the French do not manifest a disposition to confess the error and gracefully yield to the Newfoundland demand, as they should do, and this fact serves to aggravate the irritation between the two nations.THE dispatches announce that Russia has made demands upon Turkey of a financial character, with which the Porte, however willing, cannot comply. That in case the Turk fails to meet the demands the Russians will make military demonstrations in the direction of the Balkans, and that in this proposed movement Russia will have nothing to fear from England or Germany. Both these stories are probable. They comport with the policy of Russia, and they come at a time when the European powers will be less disposed than at any other to interfere with the schemes of the Czar, though English interests in Turkey would seem to involve interference. We need not be surprised to hear of military demonstrations in the far East at an early date that will advance the Russian line and shear the Porte of more of its territory in Europe.

CONDITION OF THE CROPS.

Weekly Crop Bulletins from Various Parts of the State.Following are the crop bulletins received by Signal Observer Barwick for the week ending on Saturday, the 21st:Redding—C. C. Bush. Splendid weather has prevailed, and all crops are doing well. The wheat crop is doing Tehama—John Lea. The cool weather has affected the wheat crop favorably.
What has been the very plump, and the yield is better than expected.Willows—A. W. Seashorn. The barley harvest is about over. The yield is about the average, but only about one-fourth the usual average was sown. Wheat is turning out finely, but there is only about a one-half acreage this year.Colusa—J. D. McNary. Hay is about over, and the crop is large. The fruit crop is better than was anticipated. Harvesting begins next week, and the outlook becomes more favorable as the time approaches.Hydesville—E. T. Foss. All crops are looking well.Upper Lake—C. H. Hammond. The cool weather is excellent for the grain, and the crop promises to be about the average. So many fruit trees were winter-killed that there will be little fruit of any kind.
Grapes never looked better.West Butte—J. S. Noyes. The north wind has thrashed out some wheat.Wheatland—William Lundberg. Haying has commenced. Wheat is turning out fully as well as expected.

Newcastle—C. H. Kellogg. Hay is over, and a fairly good crop was harvested.

Peaches are coming into market abundantly.Orangevale—J. W. Anderson. Heading has commenced. The cool weather is good for the wheat, also for young vines and trees. Early apricots and peaches are doing in, and the yield is above the average in quality and quantity.Lodi—Ezra Fiske. The cool weather and damp west winds of the past few days have been very beneficial to late-sown grain.
The harvesting of early-sown barley is well under way. The yield is light but the quality good.Livermore—A. J. Palmer. Hay is about over, and the hay is in good condition. Harvesting has commenced, and grain generally is of good quality, and a light average yield. Fruit is doing well.Santa Rosa—C. C. Farmer. Hops and grapes are looking well, and the prospects are for a crop above the average.Centerville—H. Overacker, Jr. Barley is about ripe, and is above the average per acre, but the acreage is much less than usual. Fruit is prospering, and bids fair to be of fine quality.Fruitvale—A. Perkins. Having well onder way, and the crop will be about the average. Cherries are very fine and abundant, and other fruits are doing well.National City—Arthur H. Wood. Haying and harvesting are practically finished.
Grain sown early yielded fairly, but on the whole the crop is light. We will have a full crop of apricots.Nicolaus—Alvah Pendleton. The grain harvest began Tuesday, and the yield is light.Sutter Creek—E. C. Voorheis. Have been cutting grain, and the prospects are favorable for an average yield.The following is the record of rainfall during the week: A few points along the immediate coast had a few light showers.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

It May Yet Be Held in the City of Sacramento.There is a prospect that San Jose may not get the Democratic State Convention, after all. It is said that the citizens of that city have not been successful in raising the necessary $3,000 to cover the legitimate expenses of the meeting.According to the San Jose Times, Mayor Rucker and James T. Murphy were instructed with the duty of raising the needful money by subscription. They went the rounds, and after meeting with rebuffs in all but about a dozen establishments, they succeeded in raising about $1,000.They have the alternative of paying the balance of $2,000 themselves, or of addressing a letter to the State Central Committee, confessing their inability to raise any money. They both decided that they will not go about the city again and meet with point blank refusals, and that if the representatives of the Democratic party in their city they have to do is to hold aloof.At the headquarters of the State Central Committee, at the State Club and the intentions of the San Jose people are not known, though the belief is general that if San Jose will not find the necessary amount, and that the Convention consequently should go there. The progress of the San Jose subscription list is being watched with considerable interest by the politicians, and the State Committee will very likely take action at its next meeting in case the list is not fully by that time.Samuel M. Shortridge, who is familiar with the situation, says that though he does not train in the Democratic camp, his situation in San Jose can hardly be as bad as that of the Times. He believes there is enough public spirit among the Santa Clara Democrats not to sully over a trifling of $3,000, and adds that if that sum was wanted for a Republican Convention it could be had in an hour.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

State Superintendent Holt left yesterday for Los Angeles to attend the annual meeting of the Trustees of the Normal School at that place.
Longton took place yesterday at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Longton, 614 N. Street. Many valuable and useful presents were received. The happy couple departed on the afternoon train for San Francisco.Arrivals at the Capital Hotel yesterday: C.

THIRTY YEARS' PRACTICE.

A Letter from an Eminent Physician.

Mr. Editor: At the risk of incurring a proprietary preparation, I have a few words in favor of a new laxative principle. But first, how I come to discover it. A patient asked about taking Joy's Vegetable Sanatorium. At first I was naturally cautious, mercury or iodine I objected, and asked for the formula, which finding purely vegetable, and so mild as to be to my mind almost inert, I consented. I imagine my astonishment when perfect laxative action was reported. It has two great points. First, being purely vegetable, it is (unlike mercury) not cumulative in the system, being easily carried off by the digestive processes; and second, it is effective with a less quantity of the cathartic principle than has hitherto been attainable. It is in this respect ranks as a discovery, and approaches the ideal, viz.: the least medicine consistent with the greatest good. It harmonizes natural laxative action and shortens the time of the process, both the public and the profession.

Sale of Flouncings.

TO-DAY, SALE OF FINE NAINSOOK FLOUNCINGS.

We recently obtained at a bargain-price an entire line of samples of fine Nainsook Embroidery Flouncings used by the New York agent of a leading manufacturer in St. Gall, Switzerland.The assortment, comprising something over 200 pieces, represents the choicest products of his looms, and are such an expensive class of goods that but few houses have the trade for them. Words cannot describe the exquisite, marvelously wrought patterns, or the exceeding fineness of the fabric. Suffice it to say that it is by long odds the richest line of FLOUNCINGS ever shown in Sacramento. The importers estimate them to be worth from $2 to $4 per yard. Commencing TO-DAY we shall sell the entire lot at the uniform price of $1 50 A YARD.

See Display in Show Window.

Mohair Sidebands.

This season Sidebands come in the popular Mohairs.
There is a quiet, subdued beauty about a colored Mohair, but with a Sideband it takes on new graces. A Mohair always gives satisfaction. Lustrous, crisp, dust-shedding, and so light that its weight is a matter of comfort.We have them in tan, light brown and steel gray; 40 inches wide. Price, 50 cents a yard.

Imported Robes.

Our worthy values and choice styles in imported Robes are attracting many buyers. Such Robes already for the making. Save waste and worry. No trimming to buy; and no shortage in cloth. And above all this is the matchless elegance that is not
